MEAs React To Pakistan's Remarks On SCO Virtual Summit

NEW DELHI: Reacting to Pakistan’s Foreign Minister Bilawal Bhutto Zardari’s statement on the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO) virtual summit conducted under India’s presidency, Ministry of External Affairs spokesman Arindam Bagchi on Friday said that such statements are commonly perceived as attempts to divide the organisation. Bagchi said on Friday that it would be presumptuous of anyone to think that one factor or one person would have decided India’s stance on the issue.

“Look, I think on the SCO summit, I think we have spoken. I think more than two or three occasions about the different factors that led to virtual SCO organiser the SCO summit in a virtual mode. It would be certainly misleading if one factor or one person would have decide India’s stance on the issue,” Bagchi said in a briefing.

He further stated that Pakistan’s Foreign Minister stated that Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan had been a concern for India. India has held the SCO Leaders’ Summit this year on July 4, 2023, in a virtual format.

The MEA spokesperson said that Pakistan Prime Minister Shahbaz Sharif called on the international community to “meaningfully” engage with Afghanistan to take the next steps. He added that the international community is quite concerned about the situation and that “meaningfully” engaging with Afghanistan is likely to be the key to move forward.

Asham is famous for its marvelous beauty, sweet music, and vast culture. For centuries people in the valley have been using a rare Kashmiri folk-song and traditional songs, and lullabies, with great enthusiasm. In the past people used to hear music in a very special way, and the women in the valley used to sing folk songs in the chinar trees. The village people were living in paddy fields sang Kashmiri songs. As time passed away, the modern Kashmiri people have found it boring and were inclined towards western music. Unfortunately, modern music started diminishing with time. The youth in the valley and Western music over our native music. Kashmiri music is beautiful but in this modern world, it is important to shape some new trends. The noise of western music had suppressed the music of Kashmir. Youngsters believed that it is boring and they are aware of its significance from a few years. We can clearly see Kashmiri songs reviving in the heart and soul of our culture were Kashmiri songs. As time passed, the old age singers are making Kashmiri songs with western pop music which is attracting the youth. It is also giving competition to the old singers. The old songs are designed in the latest version which is increasing the number of listeners. The new generation is attracted to Kashmiri songs but with pop music. Many youngsters are coming forward in this field and setting up their own music houses. But there is a deep conflict between the old Kashmiri musicians and contemporary singer. This conflict arises as some old-age singers think that the traditional music was the original version which must be not overshadowed by Western music. The new generation is attracted to pop music while Western classical music is fading away. On the other hand, the modern generation feels that the slightest music with Western music is doing wonders. It increases the number of listeners. No doubt the traditional songs have been melodious in its own way and have been attracting the youth. Now the generation is creative and is Kashmiri music songs which will reach every nook and corner of the globe. Thanks to the new singers who are working hard to keep our culture alive.
Long Walk To Transgender Rights And Gender Equality

Shobha Shukla & Bobby Ramakant

Although governments have committed to achieve gender equality by 2030, yet the progress is way off the mark. United Nations Secretary General Antonio Guterres has said that it will take another 1,000 years to achieve full gender equality. More worrying is the fact that transgender and other gender diverse people, often slip on the blind spot when many governments refer to gender equality and see it with sex and gender identity by becoming another person and a woman, man and male.

Though we also support transgender rights in many parts of the world but there has been alarming back lash and resistance too. For example, we have seen laws that criminalise LGBTQIAP+ communities, of which Nachale Boonru (also known as Shobha) while speaking at the Gender Equality Talks during Global Views series, has in a trans woman activist who was deeply involved with founding of both transgender-registered organizations in Thailand. She is currently the executive director of Human Rights and Gender Equality Network (APTN).

Legal right to gender recognition

Thailand has come for being a relatively safe space for gender diverse people. Nachale explains that this is not the full story. “Thailand does not have laws to protect transgender rights at all. We do not have legal gender recognition in Thailand. We have been advocating for same-sex care and rights and it has not been an easy task. However, I must say that Thailand has done very well in responding to HIV among transgender women.”

Nachale points out that although HIV programmes have prioritised key populations such as transgender and gender-diverse women. “Transgender men have remained excluded from HIV programming not only in Thailand but also in other nations,” she said.

“We have been working with a range of partners at Thai TGA to draft a civil society version of a law on gender identity, which is ready to be presented to the parliamentarians,” shared Nachale.

Gender-affirming hormone therapy

“Gender identity and sex assigned at birth do not necessarily match, and transgender men and transgender women. Most of them also have a condition called gender dysphoria, where they do not want to be trapped in the sex assigned to them at birth, rather they want to transition from their sex assigned to another sex of their choice. The person feels they identify by becoming another gender. The process of gender affirming hormone therapy is not just a medical intervention, rather it is a fulfilment of not just gender identity but of the whole identity of a person,” said Nachale. “Dr Arthayak Saengruang, a research physician at Institute of HIV Research (IHRI).

“Gender-affirming hormone therapy should be available to those who want their gender identity at the Gender Equality Talk. Wellness and healing Nachale and Thai TGA members recognise that it is important to not only integrate our community but also their own team members. As transgender activists we have been fighting not only for our community but also struggle in our daily lives. As transgender people we experience trauma, discrimination, stigmas, and fear at the risk of being burnt out, feel unwell, or feel like sharing with someone. That is why as an organisation, Thai TGA has created this safe space so that people can do.” said Nachale.

Families matter

Thailand has a collective culture. “So, we at Thai TGA have a network of families who accept LGBTQIAP+ children as a part in shaping the concept of gender as well as understanding. Children. If we have the family alliances, we believe that the child who will grow up among accepting parents with their family and community during the pandemic times. She worked at the Transgender and Gender Non-binary Health Advocacy Center in New York City. Currently she works as a Partnership Manager at Astraea Lesbian Foundation for Justice.

“Serve people what they need” principle

“We have to serve what people need. ‘Serve people what they need is an important principle for donors. Instead, we have lot of donors who have their agendas and indicators’”, said Nachale.

Most social stereotypes, norms, attitudes and practices, are rooted in the intersectionality when it comes to advancing rights of transgender communities,” said Nachale.

“We have to shake the social narratives to think about gender equality and social inclusion of LGBTQIAP+ people,” said Nachale. “It is important to give space to the voices of donors who have their agenda times they blame themselves. As transgender people we experience trauma, discrimination, stigmas, and fear at the risk of being burnt out, feel unwell, or feel like sharing with someone. That is why as an organisation, Thai TGA has created this safe space so that people can do.” said Nachale.

Nachale has also worked in Thailand in the healthcare field and moved back to Thailand in 2020 to be part of the LGBTQIAP+ networks. Nachale has also worked in Thailand in the healthcare field and moved back to Thailand in 2020 to be part of the LGBTQIAP+ networks.

Inter-School Sports Prize, Final Draw, Prize Distribution ceremony held in Sopore

The event showcased remarkable talent and sportsmanship among the participants from various schools, as the students celebrated their achievements.

Distinguished guests, including the Principal of the host institution and other officials, attended the ceremony. They took the opportunity to motivate and inspire the participants, commending their dedication and passion for sports.

The efforts of the Sports Council and Sports Association were lauded for fostering a culture of sports and healthy competition.

A 1X100 metre race will be played throughout the season, with each team playing 24 matches. The club finishing at the top of the table at the end of the season will be declared I-League winners and will be eligible to play in the AFC Champions League. Last season’s champions Bengaluru FC have already been promoted to the I-League.

The two relegated sides from the 2022-23 I-League season – Chennaiyin FC and Shillong FC – have been replaced by two new teams, Alipur FC and Noida FC.

The 2023-24 season will have 20 teams across three divisions. The top two teams from each division will be promoted to the I-League, and the bottom two will be relegated.

The I-League will be played throughout the year, with the divisional finals and prize distribution ceremony scheduled for the concluding week. The event will be attended by officials, players, and fans from the participating clubs.

The match between Mumbai and Kolkata officials was a strong contest, with Mumbai emerging victorious through a penalty shootout.

The I-League is the premier football league in India, hosting teams from across the country. The event aims to promote the sport and create a healthy rivalry among the participating clubs.

The All-India Football Federation, the Indian Football Association, and the state football associations are responsible for the organization and management of the league.

The event is expected to attract large crowds, with fans from across the country eagerly anticipating the upcoming matches. The league is renowned for its high-quality football and competitive spirit, making it a must-watch for football enthusiasts.

The event is scheduled to begin in November 2023, with the final rounds and prize distribution ceremony expected to take place in April 2024.
